Gun Control Rationalizations

By Michael Z. Williamson

It's amazing what one has to believe to believe in gun control:

- ... that the more helpless you are the safer you are from criminals.
- ... that Washington DC's low murder rate of 69 per 100,000 is due to gun control, and that Indianapolis' high murder rate of 9 per 100,000 is due to the lack of gun control.
- ... that "NYPD Blue" and "Miami Vice" are documentaries.
- ... that an intruder will be incapacitated by tear gas or oven spray, but if shot with a .44 Magnum will get angry and kill you.
- ... that firearms in the hands of private citizens are the gravest threat to world peace, and that China, Pakistan, and Korea can be trusted with nuclear weapons.
- ... that Charlton Heston, as president of the NRA, is a shill who should be ignored, but Michael Douglas, as a representative of Handgun Control Inc., is an ambassador for peace who is entitled to an audience at the UN Arms Control Summit.
- ... that ordinary people, in the presence of guns, turn into slaughtering butchers, and revert to normal when the weapon is removed.
- ... that the New England Journal of Medicine is filled with expert advice about guns, just like Guns and Ammo has some excellent treatises on heart surgery.
- ... that one should consult an automotive engineer for safer seatbelts, a civil engineer for a better bridge, a surgeon for spinal paralysis, a computer programmer for Y2K problems, and Sarah Brady for firearms expertise.
- ... that the "right of the people peaceably to assemble," the "right of the people to be secure in their homes," "enumeration's herein of certain rights shall not be construed to disparage others retained by the people," "The powers not delegated herein are reserved to the states respectively, and to the people," refer to individuals, but that "the right of the people to keep and bear arms" refers to the states.
- ... that the 2nd Amendment, ratified in 1787, allows the states to have a National Guard, created by act of Congress in 1917.
- ... that private citizens can't have handguns, because they serve no militia purpose, even though the military has hundreds of thousands of them, and that private citizens can't have assault rifles, because they are military weapons.
- ... that it is reasonable for California to have a minimum two-year sentence for possessing but not using an assault rifle, and reasonable for California to have a six-month minimum sentence for raping a female police officer.
- ... that it is reasonable to jail people for carrying but not using guns, but outrageous to jail people for possessing marijuana.
- ... that minimum sentences violate civil rights, unless it's for gun possession.
- ... that door-to-door searches for drugs are a gross violation of civil rights and a sign of fascism, but door-to-door searches for guns are a reasonable solution to the "gun problem."
- ... that the first amendment absolutely allows child pornography and threats to kill cops, but doesn't apply to manuals on gun repair.
- ... that Illinois' law that allows any government official from Governor to dogcatcher to carry a gun is reasonable, and that the law that prohibits any private citizen, even one with 50 death threats on file and a million-dollar jewelry business, is reasonable. And it isn't a sign of police stateism.
- ... that free speech entitles one to own newspapers, radio transmitters, computers, and typewriters, but self-defense only justifies bare hands.
- ... that gun safety courses in school only encourage kids to commit violence, but sex education in school doesn't encourage kids to have sex.
- ... that the ready availability of guns today, with only a few government forms, waiting periods, checks, infringements, ID, and fingerprinting, is responsible for all the school shootings, compared to the lack of school shootings in the 1950's and 1960's, which was caused by the awkward availability of guns at any hardware store, gas station, and by mail order.
- ... that we must get rid of guns because a deranged lunatic may go on a shooting spree at any time, and that anyone who owns a gun out of fear of such a lunatic is paranoid.
- ... that there is too much explicit violence featuring guns on TV, and that cities can sue gun manufacturers because people aren't aware of the dangers involved with guns.
- ... that the gun lobby's attempt to run a "don't touch" campaign about kids handling guns is propaganda, but the anti-gun lobby's attempt to run a "don't touch" campaign is responsible social activity.
- ... that the crime rate in America is decreasing because of gun control and that the increase in crime requires more gun control.
- ... that 100 years after its founding, the NRA got into the politics of guns from purely selfish motives, but that 100 years after the Emancipation Proclamation, the black civil rights movement was founded from purely noble motives.
- ... that statistics showing high murder rates justify gun control, and that statistics that show increasing murder rates after gun control are "just statistics."

Gun Control Rationalizations

... that we don't need guns against an oppressive government, because the Constitution has internal safeguards, and we should ban and seize all guns, therefore violating the 2nd, 4th, and 5th Amendments of that Constitution, thereby becoming an oppressive government.

... that guns are an ineffective means of self defense for rational adults, but in the hands of an ignorant criminal become a threat to the fabric of society.

... that guns are so complex to use that special training is necessary to use them properly, and so simple to use that they make murder easy.

... that guns cause crime, which is why there are so many mass slayings at gun shows.

... that guns aren't necessary to national defense, which is why the army only has 3,000,000 of them.

... that banning guns works, which is why New York, Washington DC, Detroit, and Chicago cops need guns.

... that women are just as intelligent and capable as men but a woman with a gun is "an accident waiting to happen".

... that women are just as intelligent and capable as men, and that gun makers' advertisements aimed at women are "preying on their fears."

... that a handgun, with up to four controls, is far too complex for the typical adult to learn to use, as opposed to an automobile that only has 20.

... that Massachusetts is safer with bans on guns, which is why John Kerry has machinegun-toting guards.

... that guns have no legitimate use, but alcohol does, which is why we issue cops beer instead of guns.

... that a majority of the population supports gun control, just like a majority of the population used to support owning slaves.

... that most people can't be trusted, so we should have laws against guns, which most people will abide by, because they can be trusted.

... that a woman raped and strangled with her panties is morally superior to a woman with a smoking gun and a dead rapist at her feet.

... that we should ban "Saturday Night Specials" and other inexpensive guns because it's not fair that poor people have access to guns too.

... that police operate in groups with backup, which is why they need larger capacity magazines than civilians, who must face criminals alone, and therefore need less ammunition.

... that guns should be banned because of the danger involved, and live reporting from the battlefield, which can keep the enemy informed of troop deployments, getting thousands of troops killed and perhaps losing a war, is a protected act that cannot be compromised on.

... that the right of online child pornographers to exist cannot be questioned because it is a constitutionally protected extension of the Bill of Rights, and that the claim that handguns are for self defense is merely an excuse, and not really protected by the Bill of Rights.

... that the ACLU is good because it uncompromisingly defends certain parts of the Constitution, and the NRA is bad, because it defends other parts of the Constitution.
